LIVING ROOM

This morning living room most Southern living proves that you don't have to seek for separate shades of green. The dark green walls behind the TV and the window put beautiful beds with the same green and white accent wall and create a beautiful sectional bed. While the green green sofa and the light green curtains add to the green theme and help the space achieve an organic vibe. The trick here is to pick a base color and then layer using different shades of the same color to give it a layered look. If you don't have a lot of color but you like a pop of it then adding in a green highlight wall is the way to go. Choose a medium green in the room and use the same vibrant furniture pieces to keep the pieces cohesive and add some of the same color to the space. This works great for both vintage and contemporary living room ideas. green color is beautiful too.

Green Living Room Color Ideas To Soothe Your Soul

The color green has been predicted by multiple interior design experts to be amongst the top trending colors of 2023. And it is not hard to see why. A versatile color, green can be used to inspire tranquility and calm or set a moodily bold tone to a space. Whether you want a modern look or a minimalist one, green can definitely be your go-to option. So in this article, we have compiled a list of green living room color ideas you can take inspiration from if you're looking to design a living room with a pop of green this year. Isn't this green living room just gorgeous? The pastel-colored furniture with a color block rug along with the indoor and outdoor plants set against the muted green backdrop wall makes this living room space look fabulous. And yet, despite all of these elements, the room does not look overwhelming at all. The carefully chosen color palette makes this space stand out while also adding a relaxing feel to it which is what you want to focus on while designing any living room space.

Bottle green kitchen furnichur ideas

Is there anything more solid in 2023 than green kitchen ideas? At a time when our happiness and health have seemed more important than ever, it's only right that we want to surround ourselves in shades that symbolize nature, growth and renewal. This hasn't gone unnoticed by designers, who recognize the power of green and have introduced it into their kitchen ideas in a variety of smart and sophisticated ways. Despite many regarding the kitchen as a "lustrous only" space, rich, bold colors marvellously well within a kitchen setting," explains Helen Shaw, Benjamin Moore's UK Director. "The reason being that these spaces tend to be a busy and bustling heart to the home rather than a room for repose." On of the most one-of-a-kind of kitchen color ideas, green is perfect for cabineetry walls and accessories, and you can pick from muddy moody shades to a traditional teal, and brighter greens for a livelier space. These are our favorite green kitchen ideas – use them to inspire your remodel. Green, like most shades, looks fabulous with white – and is perfect for cabinetry.

FEED THE HUNGRY SOUL

But once we start talking statistics, like the above – more than one-third of Indian children under five years are malnourished – somehow the magic of empathy seems to get lost. Why do statistics kill communication? Why is the appeal to the rational, dead on arrival? If not through numbers, how can we communicate scale?

SHARE FOOD , SAVE LIVES

One wonders why. More than one-third of our children under five years being malnourished must be a huge issue. Is it because we assume that economic growth and rising prosperity will automatically lift all boats? Is it because of our belief in fate? Is it an uncomfortable truth that we don't want to confront? Are we just too proud to find ourselves in the bottom of the Global Hunger Index rankings that we exert all our energies on poking at faults at the methodology?
