Be inspired to go green and apply these interior design ideas. ... A nice-looking living room featuring a green L-shape sofa along with green.

LIVING ROOM

This stunning living room from Southern Living proves that you don't have to settle for only one shade of green. The dark green walls behind the TV and the window pair beautifully with the mint-green and white accent wall and create a beautiful textured look. While the grass-green sofa and the neon green curtains add to the green theme and help the space achieve an eclectic vibe. The trick here is to pick a base color and then layer using different shades of the same color to give it a monotone look. If you aren't a lover of color but sure like a pop of it then adding in a green highlighter wall is the way to go. Choose a mossygreen or fern green shade to add a sense of calm in the space. Simply pair it with the same colored furniture pieces to keep the interiors synchronized and easy on the eye. Layer it with decor pieces to add contrast and depth to the space. This works great for both compact and large living room areas. Green colour is a beautiful colour.

FEED THE HUNGRY SOUL

But once we start talking statistics, like the above – more than one-third of Indian children under five years are malnourished – somehow the magic of empathy seems to get lost. Why do statistics kill communication? Why is the appeal to the rational, dead on arrival? If not through numbers, how can we communicate scale?

STOP HUNGER , START SHARING

This is one of the frustrations of non-profits and philanthropists that work on communicating the problems of hunger, stunting and malnutrition

SHARE FOOD , SAVE LIVES

One wonders why. More than one-third of our children under five years being malnourished must be a huge issue. Is it because we assume that economic growth and rising prosperity will automatically lift all boats? Is it because of our belief in fate? Is it an uncomfortable truth that we don't want to confront? Are we just too proud to find ourselves in the bottom of the Global Hunger Index rankings that we exert all our energies on poking at faults at the methodology?
